Mission and Vision

Our Mission is to enhance the lives of all animals in need, and to create a holistic society where all animals are treated humanely

In order to achieve our vision we strive to:

- End pet homelessness, neglect and abuse by proactively focusing on education about the humane treatment and responsible care of animals among youth and lower income communities.
- Rescue, rehabilitate and rehome companion animals within our outreach area.
- Reduce the impact of animal overpopulation and disease by providing free sterilizations, vaccinations and education to our qualifying lower income communities.

Animal welfare program

We always send our Animal Welfare assistants to treat the sick or injured, lost or abandoned animal. The journey behind the scenes is characterized by love and passion for the animal's welfare. We pride ourselves in always having a compassionate and caring attitude towards communities and their pets. The Animal welfare program also involves assisting pet owners with supportive treatment for their pets. We sponsor a large portion of all treatments for those pet owners with minimal income.

We were able to vaccinate about 1366 animals, sterilize over 430 animals, and treat over 629 animals in our veterinary clinic.

We aim to foster a partnership approach with community pet owners by assisting them to take responsibility in owning and caring for their pets. By doing so, we are able to affect positive change in the lives of many individual animals in the difficult environment in which they live.

Vaccination is fundamental to prevent the spread of Infectious and often fatal diseases such as parvovirus, distemper, Para influenza, adenovirus and rabies in dogs and chlamydia, feline herpes virus (FHV) and rabies in cats. Animal hope implements vaccine protocols and invests in solutions with the best immunological response to combat these diseases in our area.

We also managed to reach out to a number of pet owners in several villages through our mobile Clinic which is run by a Veterinarian that provide primary and secondary veterinary care to our communities at a free cost to financially handicapped pet owners and mostly subsidized welfare rate to moderate families. To achieve our goals we also worked with several experts donating their time and expertise for complicated cases. We treated about 629 animals that were affected by motor vehicle accidents, tick-bite fever, malnutrition, bite wounds, chaining or burning injuries, ectoparasite burdens and even the occasional gun-shot and knife wound.

School Children Education program.

Educating School children about dog welfare builds vital empathy, responsibility, and bite-prevention skills. We were able to visit six schools and the Core lessons we focused about were to teach children to recognize dog body language (like lip-licking or tail-wagging), practice safe interaction rules like waiting for a dog to approach, and understand the animal's basic emotional and physical needs.

Other lessons taught were Understanding Body Language;

- Teach children how dogs communicate discomfort (e.g., yawning, lip licking, walking away). Staring or stiffening up usually means a dog needs space.
- The "3 W's" of Dog Safety: Instruct children to wait for the dog to come to them, and Watch for a Wag. Always ask an owner before petting, and never disturb a dog while it is sleeping or eating.

- Safe Encounters: If an unfamiliar dog approaches without an owner, teaching children to turn their back and stand still or let the dog sniff them rather than running away or lunging forward
- Emotional Needs: Explaining to children that dogs, like humans, experience fear, stress, joy, and pain. They need safe resting spaces, regular veterinary care, and gentle handling.

Hope nourish program

Our main focus this year was to give out a larger portion of cat's food to pet owners. We realized that cats have been so vulnerable to hunger and starving. We therefore managed to reach out to over 511 pet owners.

Nourishing a cat with high-quality, balanced nutrition goes far beyond preventing hunger.

A well-designed diet acts as preventative medicine, significantly boosting a cat's immunity, joint health, and organ function. Proper feeding ensures a cat maintains ideal body condition, supports a healthy metabolism, and helps prevent long-term diseases.

Excellent feline nutrition provides a variety of scientifically backed health benefits for both the pet owner and a cat.
